

The Northern Lights Fly Fishers chapter is an active group of dedicated and concerned anglers and conservationists meeting regularly throughout the year and host a wide variety of events and activities to promote conservation and engage people in fly fishing and fly tying. The Chapter is active in conservation efforts, in particular its Arctic Grayling project on the upper Pembina River watershed for which it received a National Recreational Fisheries Award. The Chapter is also represented on the Alberta Fisheries Management Roundtable and over the years has met with and submitted letters to federal, provincial, and municipal governments related to fish habitat and management issues.
